SUBJECT

An existing company/brand can be used or any imaginary brand can be used as well. Currently leaning toward using an existent brand for the use of existing branding guidelines. The current considerations are:

- Nintendo / Nintendo IP
    - General Nintendo landing page/website
    - Zelda
    - Mario

BRANDING GUIDELINES

- Colors
    - --red: #dd2020;
    - --web-red: #b7000c;
    - --black: #0d0c0c; (too dark, needs lightened)
    - --dark-grey: #a5a2a2;
    - --light-grey: #002b49;
    - --white: #ffffff; (too light, needs darkened)
- Typography
    - Geologica

CONTENT

1. Header
    a. h1
    b. navbar
    c. light/darkmode button
2. Main
    a. Hero Section
        i. Section with background image, paragraph and header explaining what the service is quickly
            1. Communicate the why immediately (45sec of being on website)

        ii. Header with paragraph, image next to the text (two column grid)
    b. Points overview
        i. How do points work?
        ii. Popular games that accrue points
            1. Small, tiny cards with imgs and header and points quantity
        iii. Quick checkout for advertised games, calculate cost with tax + shipping, points earned for that order.
    c. Redeem points
        i. Explain that points can be redeemed on the Nintendo market
        ii. Market of items that points can be redeemed for
            1. Similar section to the games that are advertised. Likely could be a reused class CSS selector
    d. Ambassador Program
        i. Program that allows for content creators to enroll in program
        ii. Viewers of content creators have ability to get free reward drops (or something like that)
    e. Contact form
        i. Contact form for applying for to the program
        ii. See required content for form
3. Footer
    a. Copyright
    b. Special links
